Tagore, Sir Rabindranath

367

October 11th, 1916

Sir Rabindranath Tagore,

Care Mrs. Harriet Moody,

2970 Groveland Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

My dear Sir:

We have heard that you are lecturing during the coming winter in the United States and a number of requests have been made to me to endeavour to secure you for a lecture in the University of Toronto while you are on this side of the water.

There are many people in Toronto who have read your poetry and essays with keen pleasure and who would look forward with deep interest to hearing you. I hope that you will be able to arrange to visit us, and if so, would you be kind enough to let me know the date that would be most convenient for you to do so?

Unfortunately, owing to the war, the attendance of students would be small because so many are serving at the front, but I am sure that we could give you a large and appreciative audience.

I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.

Oct. 1916

October 11th, 1916

Sir Rabindanath Tagore,

Care J. P. Pond Lyceum Bureau,

Metropolitan Building,

New York.

My dear Sir:

We have heard that you are lecturing during the coming winter in the United States and a number of requests have been made to us to endeavour to secure you for a lecture in the University of Toronto while you are on this side of the water. There are many people in Toronto who have read your poetry and essays with keen pleasure and who would look forward with deep interest to hearing you. I hope that you will be able to arrange to visit us, and if so, would you be kind enough to let us know the date that would be most convenient for you to do so. Unfortunately, owing to the war, the attendance of students would be small because so many are serving at the front, but I am sure that we could give you a large and appreciative audience.

I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.